
ANNUAL REPORT 1991

THE INTERNATIONAL INSTITUTE OF SOCIAL HISTORY

The first part of the document discusses the importance of maintaining accurate records of all transactions. It emphasizes that every receipt, invoice, and bill should be properly filed and indexed for easy retrieval. This not only helps in tracking expenses but also provides a clear audit trail for tax purposes.

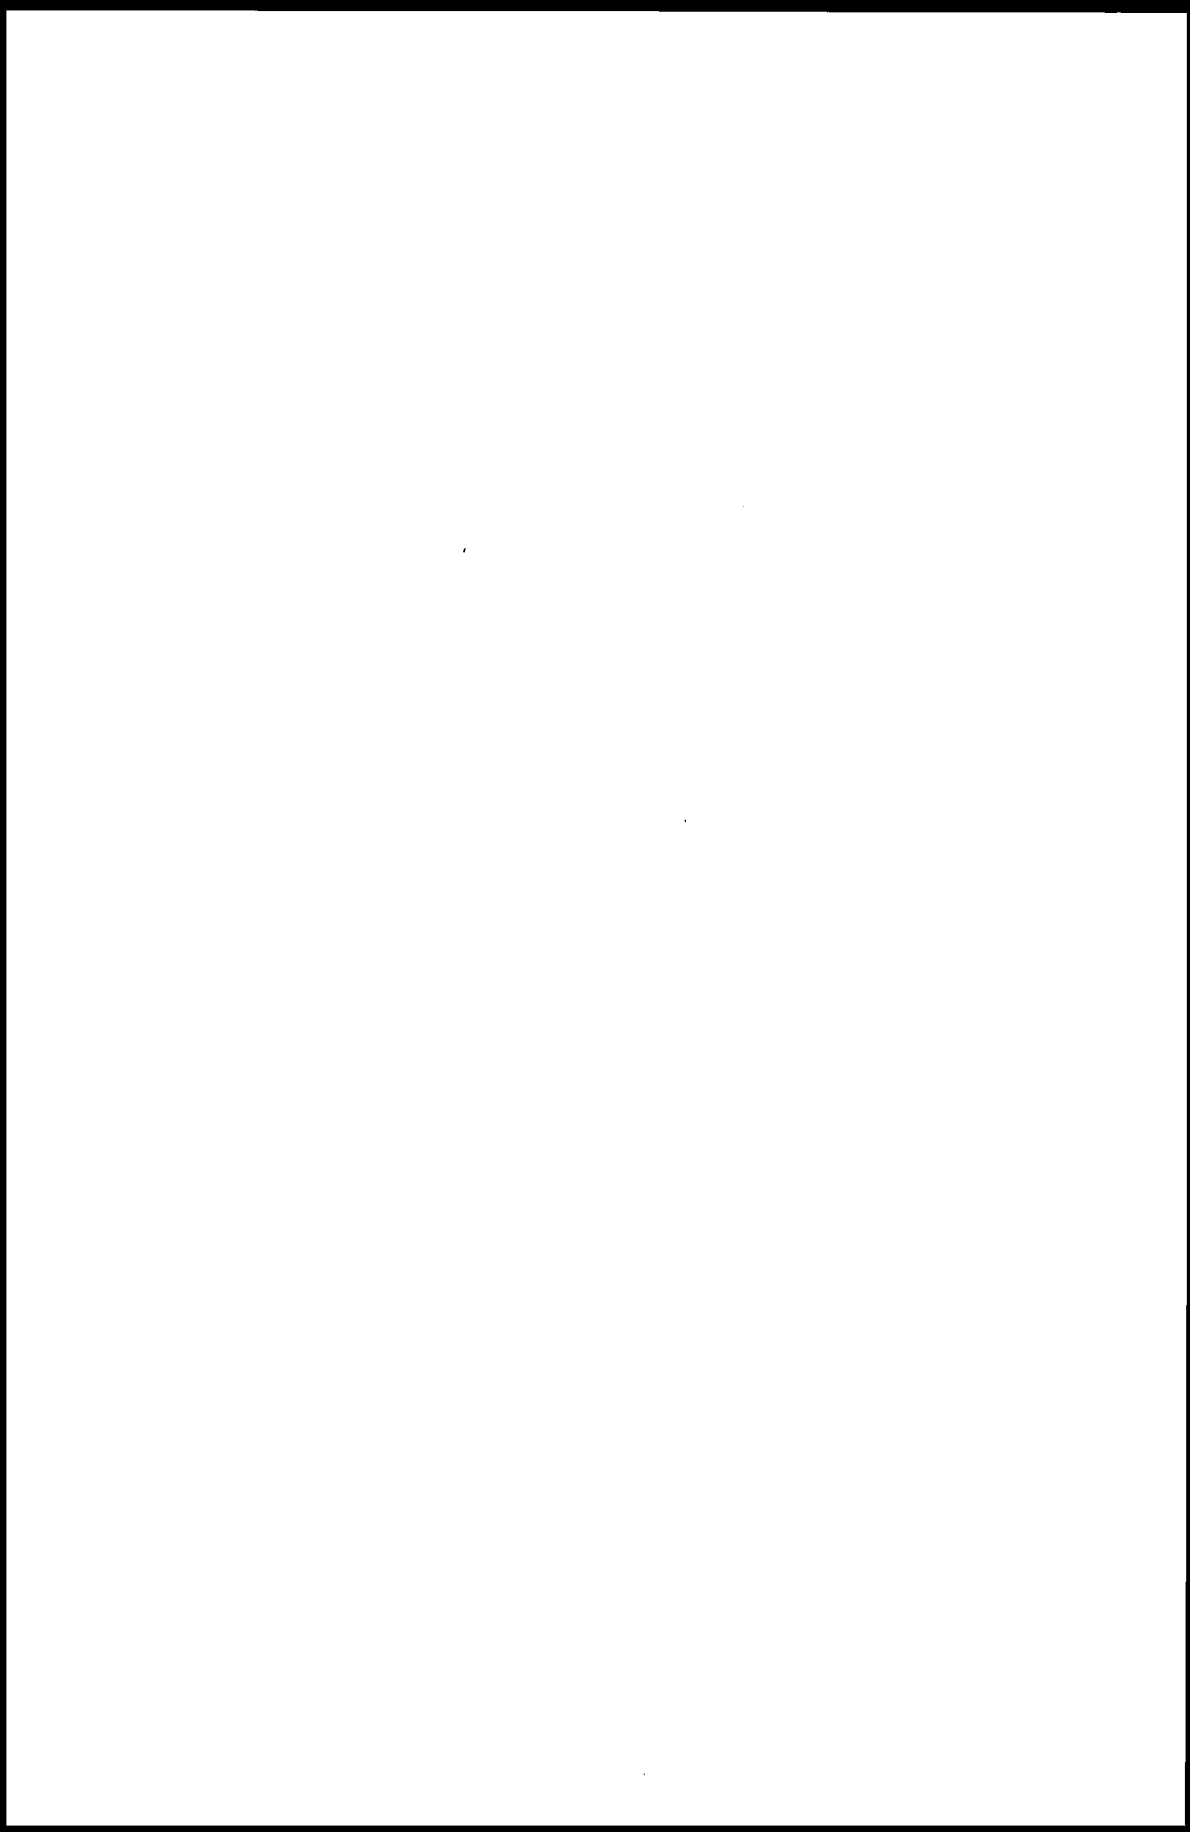

Next, the document outlines the various methods for collecting and organizing financial data. It suggests using spreadsheets or specialized accounting software to input and analyze data. Regularly updating these records is crucial to avoid discrepancies and ensure that the information is current and reliable.

The document also addresses the need for transparency and communication. It advises that all stakeholders, including investors and partners, should be kept informed of the company's financial status. Regular reporting and open dialogue can help build trust and ensure that everyone is on the same page regarding the company's financial health.

Finally, the document concludes with a strong emphasis on the importance of professional advice. It recommends consulting with accountants, lawyers, and other financial experts to ensure that all financial practices comply with relevant laws and regulations. This proactive approach can help prevent costly mistakes and ensure the long-term success of the business.

GENERAL SURVEY

Developments in Central and Eastern Europe meant 1991 was a hectic year for all those working for the aims of the IISH. Extensive use was made by those countries of the IISH's expertise in the field of management and disposition of collections. In addition, numerous sister organizations were kept informed of developments by J. Kloosterman, in his capacity as secretary of the International Association of Labour History Institutions (IALHI). These developments also led to visits to Russia and Czechoslovakia by E. Fischer and J. Kloosterman. A. Saich and E. Fischer also established contacts with institutions and people in China who can be expected to play an important role in the future.

The above developments have made continuation of the work begun in 1969 on a publication of the combined works of Marx and Engels, the Marx-Engels Gesamt Ausgabe (MEGA), a precarious business. During 1991, work on this publication in the former GDR and Soviet Union came to an almost complete standstill. However, due to the IISH Foundation's establishment last year of the International Marx-Engels Foundation (IMES), an infrastructure could be maintained through which specialists from East and West are able to participate in the continuation of the MEGA. E. Fischer is chairperson of the IMES, and J. Rojahn is the driving force behind the Foundation. Through his efforts and his excellent contacts with Dr H.P. Harstick, a former Institute staff member, close ties could be developed with the Konferenz der deutschen Akademien der Wissenschaften. As things stand, the efforts of Harstick and Rojahn will lead to the finalization in early 1992 of a contract between the IMES and the Konferenz on the contributions to be made by the latter to the IMES' aims.

The IISH's international activities have attracted attention in the international press. In addition, two Dutch broadcasting organizations showed interest in its work and decided to devote extensive coverage to the Institute and its international activities. In February of next year, a documentary entitled 'The papers of the revolution' will be shown, and in the same month a television reportage on the Institute's (rescue) activities in Czechoslovakia will be broadcast.

A very important highlight for the Institute this book year was the opening of the National Trades Unions Museum on May 1. Without exaggeration, it can be said that this project, taken up once again in 1984 jointly with the FNV Industrial Union, forms a milestone in the history of the Dutch trades union movement. The venue on the Henri Polaklaan was designed at the turn of the century by Amsterdam-School architect H.P. Berlage for the diamond-workers union. It was acquired in 1990 by the IISH Administrative Foundation, and has been renovated thoroughly, and adapted to meet the demands made on buildings used as museums. Numerous IISH employees have worked voluntarily on the creation of this museum. It is to be hoped that the aims behind the establishment of the museum, i.e. introducing a broad public to the role played by the trades union movement in the emancipation struggle of the working classes, will be achieved.

Dr P. de Wolff saw the opening of the museum as the time to lay down his chairpersonships and board memberships of the IISH Foundation, IISH Administrative Foundation, and Trades Union Museum Foundation. He was 80 when he bid farewell to this body of responsibilities on May 27. In view of his 20-year tenure as chairperson of the IISH Foundation, and the fact that his efforts during this period were valued highly by everyone who knew him, the staff of the Institute compiled a Liber Amicorum, both for him and for Dr W.J. Wieringa who stepped down in 1989. De Wolff was addressed by his successor H. van de Kar, and Wieringa - former chairperson of the KNAW-Institute IISH - by his successor on that board, Dr W.H. Roobol.

Because insufficient funding will be made available to finance the desired academic configuration after the reorganization, it is gratifying that one of the founders of the Institute, the Reaal (formerly De Centrale) insurance company, is prepared to make available a considerable amount of money to make possible comparative research in the field of social history. This research will commence in the second half of 1992.

Half-way through the book year, the executive board produced a memorandum which outlined the proposed policy for the next five years. Whether this policy can be implemented will depend not only on developments which take place in international politics in the near future, but also on funding made available by subsidy bodies. As a result, a number of alternative policies are provided for in the memorandum. At the end of 1990, the boards of the IISH responded positively to this memorandum, so that it can now be submitted to the KNAW board. The KNAW board is expected to pronounce on this memorandum in the first quarter of the coming year.

Of great interest to the Institute this year were disclosures by the Central State Special Archive in Moscow, which holds an important section of the historical records seized by the Red Army in Europe during World War II. In an interview published in Izvestija on October 16, its former director explicitly confirmed the existence in this collection of materials belonging to IISH. As is well known, during the war the Institute lost some very precious collections, most notably those stored in its French subsidiary, which were captured by the Germans after being hidden in Amboise, outside Paris.

Earlier, in August, E. Fischer was able to bring back a small, but valuable collection of books and pamphlets that had ended up in Moscow after the war. At the same time, other IISH collections of printed matter were reported to be kept in the Library of the Academy of Sciences in Minsk. In a separate development, sections of the archive of the Sozialistische Arbeiterinternationale, considered lost since the war, turned up in an archive deposit in Berlin.

Of particular importance to future researchers on the history of the Soviet Union, the Institute struck an agreement with Memorial, the Moscow-based independent document and research centre on Soviet State terror, under whose terms it will film all of 30,000 files on individual cases of repression. The films will be made available in Amsterdam. Memorial also assisted the Institute in collecting relevant parts of the new independent press, thus supplementing other efforts made in collaboration with the Moskovskaja Nezavisimaja Publičnaja Biblioteka and the Gosudarstvennaja Istoričeskaja Publičnaja Biblioteka of Moscow.

As the general crisis in Central and Eastern Europe severely affected both old and new document centres in the field of social history, the Institute, true to its origins, stepped in to help wherever feasible. It initiated an international action aimed at Czechoslovakia, for which it found the support of the Bibliothèque de Documentation Internationale Contemporaine (Nanterre) and the Fondazione Giangiacomo Feltrinelli (Milan). In cooperation with independent Czech historians and archivists, the three institutions decided to establish an office in Prague, which started operating in November. Its staff began working on a detailed report concerning the state of socio-historical collections in the country, which will then be used to formulate middle-term strategies for concrete action.

Other steps were taken with regard to the crumbling Soviet Union, especially after the aborted coup attempt in August, which shook the Soviet archival world to its foundations. Contacts were established with the Committee on Archival Affairs of the Russian Federation and the new Russian Centre for Preservation and Research of Contemporary Historical Documents, formerly the Central Party Archive. The Institute offered to organize an international platform for cooperation in the fields of joint research projects, exchange of microfilms, and access and preservation. Once again, it was supported by BDIC, the Feltrinelli Foundation and the Maison des Sciences de l'Homme (Paris). This initiative happily coincided with efforts already in progress for some time in the USA. At a meeting at the W. Averell Harriman Institute (New York) in November it was decided to join forces and create an international coordinating commission, with American participation from the Universities of Berkeley, Brandeis, Brown, Columbia, Georgetown, Indiana, Michigan, Ohio State, Pennsylvania, Princeton, Rutgers, Stanford and Syracuse. J. Kloosterman was elected chairperson of its Committee on Archives. A short while later, the School of Slavonic and East European Studies of the University of London joined the group. The initiative was endorsed by UNESCO, the International Federation of Library Associations and Institutions (IFLA), the Section of Business and Labour Archives of the International Council on Archives (ICA/SBL), the Fondation Jules Humbert-Droz (La Chaux-de-Fonds), and the Förderkreis Archive und Bibliotheken der Arbeiterbewegung (Berlin).

In related developments the Institute is currently discussing joint research projects on the Communist International with the Institut Vseobščej Istorii Akademija Nauk (Moscow) and the Feltrinelli Foundation, and on the Russian Revolutionary Socialist Party with the Universities of Göttingen and Indiana at Bloomington.

At the Annual IALHI Conference in Linz, J. Kloosterman was reelected for a second term as its secretary and executive officer.

A number of favourable developments took place in the collections field. First and foremost, a grant was made by the Ministry of Science and Education for the 'State and Civil Society in Chinese Cultures' project, a sequel to the Tian'anmen project. Secondly, an even more generous grant was received from the same Ministry for a digital storage project, which would facilitate access and significantly decrease the costs of reproduction. A pilot project has been started up.

A third positive development was the start of talks at the end of 1991 on the replacement of the main computer system. Improved search facilities, urgently needed now that the new subject-oriented retrieval system is being applied, are paramount in the demands. Moreover, the performance of the present system which went into operation in early 1987, has begun to be marred by occasional failure of the hardware.

Cooperation between several academic libraries and the Public Library in Amsterdam resulted in the installation of the Adamnet, through which the catalogue of the IISH can be consulted on-line by staff members of the participating libraries. In the course of 1992, the catalogues of the participating libraries will be made available to the public from the reading room of the IISH. Contacts with organizations concerned with computer use in historical research were continued. The automation at the Institute continued to draw interest both nationally and from abroad.

To counter the considerable growth of the total acquisition in recent years, first steps aimed at limitation were taken on several levels. Close attention was paid to the appraisal of newly acquired archives. Research was carried out on the possibilities of reappraising large archives already held by the IISH, the findings of which will be discussed with the owners of the archives. The IISH exchange bureau disposed of an increasing amount of surplus books and periodicals, sending off a lot of duplicates to other libraries in and outside the Netherlands. A start was made with the restriction of the acquisition of archives and book collections. After consultation with other collecting institutions, other solutions were found for several archives and libraries, not central to the Institute's field of acquisition. In addition, tighter demarcation of each others field of acquisition was discussed with several institutions in the Netherlands, e.g. with the Nederlands Documentatiecentrum voor Politieke Partijen in Groningen. At the IISH, discussion on re-evaluation of its acquisition profile was started.

Work on the new subject-oriented retrieval system, which includes the building of a thesaurus of descriptors, was continued. Using the new system, descriptions of 23,000 photographs have now been entered in the database, in addition to the 20,000 portrait items input before. Descriptors have been attached to approximately a quarter of the 15,000 posters entered. Further future development of the thesaurus will involve application to books and pamphlets.

Among the archives and collections received in 1991 the sizable records of the European Trade Union Confederation should be mentioned in particular, as well as the archives of the Dutch publishing house Allert de Lange, a major publisher of German exiles before World War II. Other important acquisitions include Martin Almada, Defense and Aid Fund Nederland, H.J. Diekerhof (army chaplain involved in anti-nuclear protest), FNV Jongerenbeweging, G. Fontenis (French anarchism from the 1950s onwards), Herman Kiewiet de Jonge (ethical movement in the Dutch East Indies), Jules de Leeuwe (cultural anthropologist, active in the CPN), B.J. Max (Stichting 'De Vonk'), S. Pamukçu (former vice-secretary general of DISK), Parti Socialiste Français (minutes of the Central Committee 1901-1902), Remplod-Research Project (Reintegration of Emigrant Manpower and Local Opportunities for Development), V.O. Rubinstein (memoirs of a menshevik), Helmut Rüdiger (i.e. AIT), Stichting Informatie over Charta '77, Unie van Beambten, Leidinggevend en Hoger Personeel and forerunners, Vervoersbond FNV and forerunners, Het Vrije Volk (including the complete series of its national and local editions), Werkgroep Buitenlandse Arbeiders Leiden (Leiden Study and Working Group on Migrant Workers). Documents were also received relating to the revolution against Ceaucescu in Rumania in 1989, and the coup in Russia in 1991.

Among the more important acquisitions of the ID-Archiv were the substantial collections of the Antiimperialistisches Solidaritätskomitee, concerning the Third World movement, and the Knast-Archiv, consisting of documents relating to German prisons. The Social Movements Documentation section concentrated its collecting on historical as well as recent trends in youth and underground culture in both the West and East. Particular mention should be made of interviews with over 25 persons active in these movements, many of them from Eastern Europe, on their history, music and publications, including samizdat and independent publishing. Gramophone records and audio cassettes were collected of musical trends, social protest and nationalist music, experimental musical expressions and registrations of historical events. Also the archive of Paradiso was acquired, besides video tapes of programs of the pirate broadcasting station 'De Vrije Keizer'.

The Image & Sound Section, finally, acquired the impressive negatives and slides collection of the Dutch photographer Sem Presser, consisting of approximately 750,000 items from the period 1935-1986. Also important and impressive in size was the collection of the communist newspaper De Waarheid, consisting of their entire photo collection, estimated to number some 35,000 items, as well as a huge number of posters, some drawings and objects. Another striking acquisition was Toos Koedam's and Jan Koperdraat's 32 gigantic painted banners, made for campaign meetings on Vietnam, South Africa, etc. Other interesting items were a negatives album on a journey through Kurdistan, made in 1925, by J. H. Kramers, a member of an inspection committee of the League of Nations, and Hamza Inanç's photo albums on the Turkish Köy Enstitüleri (1938-1950), village institutes for the training of locals as teachers, based on educational theories like Rudolf Steiner's.

Inventories and lists were made of, among others, the archives and collections of Friedl Baruch, the Beroepsvereniging van Beeldende Kunstenaars (BBK) and BBK Limburg district, Bond van Christelijke Politieambtenaren in Nederland, Centrum voor Ontwikkelingssamenwerking Nijmegen, Hendrik J. Diekerhof, Mr. A. de Graaf Stichting, Industriebond FNV Friesland district, Katholieke Politiebond 'St. Michael', Komitee Kruisraketten Nee, Landelijk Energie Komitee, Bep J. Max, Mouvement Socialiste pour les Etats-Unis d'Europe/Mouvement Gauche Européenne, Nationaal Comité tot Bestrijding van den Handel in Vrouwen en Kinderen - from 1948 Nationaal Comité van Instellingen voor Zedelijke Volksgezondheid, Nederlandse Vereniging van Journalisten, Partij van de Arbeid The Hague/Loosduinen branch, Martin Paulissen, Pet met de Zet, Postal Telegraph and Telephone International, Annie Romein-Verschoor, G. Ruygers, Hendrika M. Scheffer, H. Smeets, Sobriëtas (Federatie van R.K. Diocesane Bonden tot Bevordering der Christelijke Matigheid en tot Bestrijding van het Alcoholisme), Soviet Union: 'Neformaly' (unofficial) publications, Unie BLHP (forerunners and Bedrijfsgroep Druk en Papier), Vereniging van Ambtenaren bij de Organen der Sociale Verzekering, Werkgroep Uruguay Amsterdam, World Crafts Council (WCC) en WCC-Europe. Listed were also several supplements to archives, the more substantial of which were the Interkerkelijk Vredesberaad and the Stichting van de Arbeid, as well as the complete collection of documentation and leaflets on Great Britain (until 1990) kept by the Institute.

C. Açıköz listed the TIP-section (Turkish Labour Party) of the K. Sülker collection, while Mark Gourley, who fulfilled a placement at the IISH as part of a training program sponsored by Magee College, University of Ulster, listed the records of the International Council of Social Democratic Women/Socialist International Women, Liaison Committee of Women's International Organizations and Socialist International.

The number of records entered by the Library and Archives Technical Department has been stabilized, in spite of a shift of personnel from the cataloguing to the acquisition section, made necessary by the increase of new monographs and serial publications acquired.

The long-term project, started in 1981, of assigning a unique number to all 65,000 separate series of periodicals (originally identified only by name) was completed in 1991. In addition, the correction of the converted periodical catalogue was finished. As a result, a start could be made on the description of part of the backlog of book and periodical collections, i.e. the International Mass Media Research Centre, K. Škrábek and the collection of the Social Movements Documentation.

In the field of preservation contacts were maintained with the Coördinatiepunt Nationaal Conserveringsbeleid which, as part of its task, executed a pilot project, developing criteria for the assessment of existing material damage in Dutch libraries and archives.

A commercial microfilming project, marketed by Research Publications, Cambridge, to publish the combined collections of women's periodicals of the IISH and the Internationaal Informatiecentrum en Archief voor de Vrouwenbeweging, Amsterdam, was completed. Chadwick Healey, Cambridge, put out the first batch of microfilms of the integral publication of Emma Goldman's papers, prepared by the Emma Goldman Papers, University of California, Berkeley, including all Goldman-documents kept by the IISH.

The policy introduced in 1987 in which individual research of members of the research department is combined with the organization of national and international cooperation, resulting in congresses and publications, is being continued.

In the course of 1991, an international academic committee was established, chaired by board member Dr W.H. Roobol. The committee consists of Drs R. Griffith (Florence), P. Hesselink (Rotterdam), C. Lis (Brussels), R. Price (Maryland), P. de Rooij (Amsterdam), C. Tilly (New York), H. van der Wee (Leuven/Louvain).

In cooperation with the Mutualités de France and the IALHI, international comparative research on Mutual Benefit Societies was started by J. Kloosterman, M. van der Linden and J. Lucassen, which will culminate in a congress in Paris in December 1992, and a book. Representatives from more than 30 countries are participating.

Training

As in previous years, the Institute made it possible for some of the staff members to receive additional training. Six members benefited from this program by taking the following courses: higher archive civil servant, legal position civil servant, manual book-binding, history, social-democracy during the Interbellum, and book-keeping.

APPENDIX 3: GENERAL SERVICES

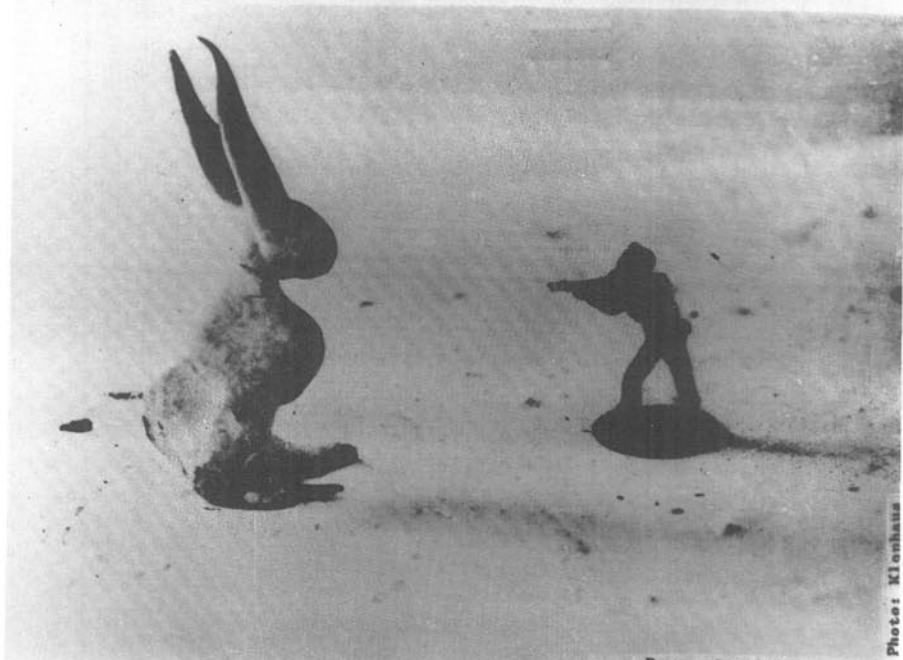

No major changes took place in the general services department during 1991. As always, the secretariat worked under great pressure. In addition to its usual work-load, this department was also involved in the organization of congresses and meetings; the Racism Congress from September 5 to 8, and the IMES/MEGA Conferences from October 3 to 5, entailed a great amount of work. From April, A. Woudstra became responsible for the PC support group and for contacts with suppliers of hardware and software.

During the book year, the in-house services department handled 31 external meetings, 11 congresses, 12 receptions, and a large number of internal meetings. Mail processing, use of telephone, and the distribution of office materials were administrated and analyzed in detail, so that cost reductions could be achieved. New arrangements on cleaning the stock room were made with the cleaning services company.

The building proved excellent. The storm damage to the facade, which occurred in 1989, was repaired. In the autumn, the IISH building was awarded the 'appreciation prize' for 'stucco buildings' in the renovation category.

The automation steering group consisted of J. Kloosterman, T. Sierink, H. Wals and A. Woudstra. Executive work related to personal computers and printers was carried out by a PC support group, consisting of A. Blok, J. Hofman, P. Lourens, N. Markus, H. Sanders, E. Wagenaar, J. Quast, H. Staphorst and A. Woudstra. A number of training sessions were conducted by Kloosterman and Woudstra. The automation level at the Institute increased once again - 90 percent of the employees who use this equipment have now been provided with a personal computer. The Novell network purchased in 1990 for management, secretariat and administration performed well.

APPENDIX 4: RESEARCH AND EDUCATION

A. Current Research

— 'The History of Trade Guilds and Mutual Benefit ('friendly') Societies' project (J. Lucassen and P. Lourens, with assistance from trainees E. Binnendijk and S. Bos, and in cooperation with Dr. L. van der Valk of the Erasmus University Rotterdam) - work on the creation of a data-base for the Netherlands, ca. 1400-1900.

— Research commissioned by De Centrale Verzekeringen on its history was begun by J. van Gerwen.

— Four staff members of the IISH, C.H. Wiedijk, J. Lucassen, M. van der Linden and N. Markus, worked on the publication of a compilation of sources concerning the Dutch trades union movement since 1891, in cooperation with the Free University of Amsterdam and the Catholic Documentation Centre in Nijmegen. Publication of the book is expected in 1992.

— 'The History of the Netherlands from a comparative perspective', coordinated by J. Lucassen and Dr C.A. Davids (Leiden) - further preparations were made for the international research group's stay at the NIAS, September 1992 to July 1993.

— E. Zürcher organized the following projects: 'The role of minorities in the genesis of the socialist movement in the Ottoman Empire' (coordinator Dr M. Tunçay, Istanbul), and 'The development of the Turkish industrial working class between 1840 and 1940' (coordinator Dr D. Quataert, Binghamton). Both projects will be finalized with publications in book form.

— The Marx-Engels Gesamt Ausgabe (MEGA) acquired more definite form through the establishment of the International Marx-Engels Foundation (IMES) in November 1990. J. Rojahn has been appointed secretary. There are indications that the Konferenz der Deutschen Akademien der Wissenschaften will appoint seven researchers for work on the MEGA.

— More than 50 specialists have joined the Comintern project supervised by J. Rojahn. All have been invited to write an article, and these will provide an overview of relevant research on the influence of the Comintern in various countries.

— The text for the source section of the 'Reisepredigt' project led by J. Lucassen was made definitive, and draft annotations were completed.

— A.J. Saich worked with Dr D. Apter of Yale University on 'The Chinese revolution in comparative perspective' research project.

— At the end of the year, the KNAW and IISH achieved agreement on the financing for the finalization of the Bakunin project, although in a slightly different form than had been expected.

— In December 1991, the Institute received a substantial contribution for the continuation of the 'State and Civil Society in Chinese Cultures' project.

— The 'Trekarbeid vanuit Lippe-Detmold, 1776-1869' (on migrant labour) project was halted temporarily.

— In cooperation with labour movement research institutes in Stockholm, Copenhagen and Antwerp, the IISH is working on a source publication (led by J. Rojahn) on the history of the Second International during the First World War.

— Preparations for the source publication 'De briefwisseling tussen Henriëtte Roland Holst and Henk Sneevliet' were completed by F. Tichelman and N. Markus. The publication in book form is expected in 1992.

— Work on the source publication on the Indonesian Social-Democratic Association, 1917-1918 (ISDV III) was continued by F. Tichelman and E. Schwidder.

— U. Langkau-Alex worked on the projects 'Widerstand, Exil und Deutschland nach Hitler. Paul Hertz und die deutsche Sozialdemokratie, 1933-1949' and 'Paul Hertz und der wirtschaftliche und soziale Wiederaufbau West-Berlins, 1950-1961'.

— D. Devreese continued her research on the First International.

— In September 1991, the 'Racism and the labour market' congress took place at the IISH in cooperation with the Historische Rasicme Studies research group. The publication of papers to the congress, edited by M. van der Linden and J. Lucassen among others, is in preparation.

— K. Hofmeester's comparative Ph.D. research on the Jewish labour movements in Amsterdam, London and Paris is progressing steadily. The research will be completed in 1994.

— The manuscript of memoirs of Dittmann, edited by J. Rojahn, is almost complete and will be published in 1993.

B. Completed Research

— E. Fischer completed his research on the history of the Gelderman textile company.

— The 'Die Rezeption der Werke van Karl Marx und Friedrich Engels in den Niederlanden' project, led by M. van der Linden, was rounded off with a congress in Trier, and a publication in book form (to appear in 1992). In the framework of this project, J. Gielkens created an exhibition which was displayed in the Studienzentrum Karl-Marx-Huis in Trier for almost a month, and later for a further four weeks at the IISH.

C. Education

— J. Lucassen gave seminars, lectures and supervised extended essays at the Free University in Amsterdam; was referent at a Ph.D ceremony at the Free University on November 29, 1991; was a member of the opposition committee at the University of Agriculture at Wageningen on December 18, 1991, and took part in the AIO-network activities on 'history of the 19th and 20th centuries', and 'Posthumus-centrum'.

— F. Tichelman took part in the activities of the AIO network on 'history of the 19th and 20th centuries'.

— A. Saich gave seminars, lectures and supervised extended essays at Leiden University.

— E. Zürcher gave seminars, lectures and supervised extended essays at the Catholic University at Nijmegen.

— E. Fischer gave seminars, lectures and supervised extended essays at the Catholic University at Nijmegen.

Lieber Herr Landauer!

Ich wäre schon bei Ihnen gewesen, aber mein Besuch wurde durch eine dumme Sache aufge-schoben. Der Freund, den ich treffen wollte, wur-de nämlich nicht ~~ins Land~~ ^{nach Holland} hereingelassen, obwohl er seine Papiere in bester Ordnung hatte. Sobald er eine zuverlässige Grenzbescheinigung von seinem Konsulat bekommt, wird er seinen missglückten Ver-such erneuern und dann erscheine ich sofort.

Was für Zeiten! Ich kann mir denken, wie schwer Sie es haben.

Herzliche Grüsse Ihres
