Introduction

Which Asian collections are at the International Institute of Social History (IISH) in Amsterdam? This guide offers a preliminary answer to that question. It presents a rough survey of all collections with a substantial Asian interest and aims to direct researchers toward historical material on Asia, both in ostensibly Asian collections and in many others. The present guide is by no means an exhaustive resource on the subject. Obtaining information concerning the holdings through the information service of the IISH therefore remains necessary.

A short history

At the beginning of the 1930s the political situation in Central and Eastern Europe was worsening. Hitler's seizure of power and developments in the Soviet Union threatened people of all convictions within the labour movement, as well as their documentary collections. At the initiative of the Dutch professor of economic history N.W. Posthumus, who was dedicated to saving the endangered papers of the international labour and trade union movement, the IISH was founded in Amsterdam in 1935. Before the outbreak of World War II, the Institute rescued numerous collections from all over Europe and had them transported to the Netherlands. The most important collections acquired in the period 1935-40 were the archival legacy of Marx and Engels, the Bakunin manuscripts, and the records of the Spanish syndicalist trade union CNT and the anarchist organization FAI. Libraries and archives of Mensheviks and Social-Revolutionaries who had fled Russia were also brought to safety to Amsterdam. Shortly before the Nazis occupied the Netherlands in May 1940, a part of the most valuable archives, including the Marx and Engels papers, were brought to a subsidiary of the Institute in Oxford, Britain, for safekeeping. During the war, however, parts of the IISH holdings were confiscated and shipped to Germany to be used for a variety of purposes by the German bureaucracy. In 1946, most of this material was rediscovered and returned to Amsterdam. The return of papers located in the Soviet Zone of Europe was far more gradual and tedious: the archive of the Dutch Social Democratic Party (SDAP) was ultimately sent back from Poland in 1956-57. In 1991, following the failed coup in Moscow, other IISH materials proved to have been preserved for years in a separate archival institute in the Soviet capital.

After the Second World War and throughout the 1950s, IISH worked to reestablish order in the archive and library. After that period, IISH continued to pursue its rescue activities in Europe and it remained an indispensable repository for the archives and libraries of persecuted people and organizations. Reflecting Asia's enlarged role on the world stage, both economically and politically, IISH's interest in saving material now extended beyond Europe.

In the 1980s, IISH staff sought a safe haven for the collections of Turkish political parties, trade unions, and individuals. Established in 1987, the IISH Turkey Section, has assembled an impressive collection. From 1995 on IISH extended its activities beyond the East of Turkey to include Iran, the Caucasus, and Central Asia.

Another example of the rescue operations run by IISH concerns the unique documentation on the Chinese democratic movement in the spring of 1989. Participants in the events in Beijing collected this material with the assistance of IISH staff on the spot. This Chinese People's Movement Collection of pamphlets, posters, photographs, newspapers, and the like has found a refuge in Amsterdam.

In 1996, the IISH finally decided to foreground Asia in its activities and established an Asia Department. In addition to Southeast Asia (Indonesia) and East Asia (China) both longstanding interests of IISH South Asia was selected as an area of special interest. Since its founding the IISH Asia Department has already acquired several collections from Bangladesh, India, and Pakistan. From 1999 on IISH also developed a growing interest in documents on Burmese social history as well as current affairs. Since 2011 the Asia Department has been divided into two region desks with their own staff: South Asia (Ranchi, India) is concentrating on Bangladesh, Pakistan, Northeast India, Nepal and Sri Lanka and the Southeast Asia desk (Bangkok) collects materials from Burma, Indonesia, Malaysia, Singapore, Cambodia, Thailand Hong Kong and the Philippines. The regional desks are not active in the rest of Asia but are open to any offers from there. Other IISH region desks are on Africa (sub-Saharan), Eastern Europe and Russia, Latin America, Middle East and Central Asia.

Since the late 1970s, the Institute has worked within the framework of the Royal Netherlands Academy of Arts and Sciences. Its library, archives and other collections, however, are owned by the independent Foundation IISH.

The holdings

The IISH now holds over more than 3,000 archival collections, some 1 million printed volumes and about as many audio-visual items. The IISH collections on modern Asian history comprise archive, library, and audio-visual materials with a thematic emphasis on social, progressive, and emancipatory movements.

Most of the IISH material on Asia has not been collected intentionally, but came along with European, mainly Dutch collections. As a result Indonesia and the European vision on Asia dominate the documents. The archive of the Dutch international revolutionary Henk Sneevliet is a clear example. The unique collection of Japanese anarchistic and socialist magazines from the beginning of the 20th century is an interesting exception. The extensive archives of the international trade union and political organizations (like the International Confederation of Free Trade Unions, ICFTU, and the Socialist International, SI) at the IISH were hardly unlocked on their Asian dimension. The present guide provides selected descriptions of these international collections. In recent years the Asia Department has been able to acquire many documents from both South- and Southeast Asia. Among these is a large collection of political and cultural periodicals in Bengali and English, covering the period since the 1940s. With regard to Indonesia personal collections, such as those of Poncke Princen, Suparna Sastradiredja, Oei Tjoe Tat and Wim Wertheim, were acquired. Apart from the usual ways in which IISH collections are acquired, the Asia Department has been active in creating and preserving non-written sources, particularly audio and audiovisual ones. To this end, several oral history projects have been initiated. The interview projects on political exiles from Indonesia (In Search of Silenced Voices), the Naxalbari movement (a Maoist uprising in India) and progressive movements in Bangladesh are examples. Tape recordings of the interviews were delivered to the Image and Sound Department of the IISH.

The IISH building accommodates other documentary institutions as well. In addition to the IISH collections, users may consult the archives and the library of the Netherlands Economic History Archive (NEHA) and the Netherlands Press Museum, which have papers relating to Asia (mainly Indonesia). Their material is included in the IISH catalogue. Information about these collections appears in the “Gids van de collecties van het Nederlandsch Economisch-Historisch Archief” and the “Overzicht van de archieven van het Nederlands Persmuseum”.

The guide

The present guide is an up-date of the 2007 edition. This new volume differs in some respects from the 2007 guide. For this edition we have left out the overview of Asian periodicals and that of the Annual Reports of IISH and NEHA. The total number of collections listed in the Guide grew from 286 for the 3rd ed. to 366 for this 4th ed. (174 personal and 192 organizational collections)

The guide describes the IISH archives and collections (including NEHA and Press Museum (PM) collections on Asia) consisting entirely or partly of original documents. The descriptions summarize a selection of the most important documents relating to Asia found in the archives listed below. Each summary is preceded by a condensed biography or history.

Like the “Guide to the International Archives and Collections at the IISH, Amsterdam” (edition 1999), the entries in this Asian guide are divided into two groups: the section on the archives and collections of individuals is followed by one on the organizations. Both groups have been arranged alphabetically and by number for easy reference. is followed by one on the organizations. Both groups have been arranged alphabetically and by number for easy reference.

The components of each archival entry are:

1. Name. Names of persons include dates of birth and death when known.
2. Access. As a rule consultation is not restricted; any restrictions are indicated by *.
3. Period. First and last date of the documents present in the archive.
4. Size. In linear metres.
5. Finding aid. Available inventories, lists and indexes.
6. Biography/history.
7. Summary. Contents of the archives relating to Asia.
8. Weblink to the online description of the collection, incl. finding aids. (D) means the collection description is in Dutch.

For more up to date information on new acquisitions see also the homepages of the different desks (<http://socialhistory.org/en/regiondesks>)

The IISH preserves an extensive collection of photographs, posters, cartoons, audio and videotapes, and the like. The guide briefly describes the holdings on Asia of the IISH Sound and Image Section and includes as well the Special Collections. For some Asian countries, the sections on each type of material include a brief thematic report and indicate the period concerned.

Access and consultation

Archival documents.

The archival and documentary collections at the IISH are in principle freely available for research purposes. Nevertheless, contacting the information service preceding a visit is advisable and is required for consultation of various archives to which access is limited. Donors and owners of material may impose restrictions for periods of various lengths, during which collections or parts of collections may not be accessed, copied, or published contingent upon their express permission. Restricted access to archives may also be necessary to protect the privacy of individuals or because of the physical condition of the material in question. Documents cannot be requested merely through reference to this guide. Most archives can be consulted with the help of a finding aid: a list or inventory, as indicated in the heading of each description in this guide. Inventories with code numbers are made of archives, which have been arranged and described in detail. Lists are compiled of almost all the other archival collections. The archives may be consulted in the IISH reading room. Requests for documents should include their inventory or list numbers. For further information about the rules for access and consultation, (including procedures for making photocopies) users should contact the information service of the IISH (see for details: <http://socialhistory.org/en/services>).

Iconographical and audio-visual material.

Images of photographs and posters are available in a computer-based system in the Reading Room. Original material can be consulted at the Image and Sound Section after a previously made appointment.

Printed matter.

Printed publications (books, periodicals, and pamphlets) can be consulted freely through online catalogues in the Reading Room. For the consultation of microfilms and microfiches reading equipment is available. From Monday to Friday no requests will be handled after 4 pm.

Contributors

Many of the summaries, biographies, and histories of the archives and documentation collections represent the descriptions previously published in “De Nederlandse archieven van het Internationaal Instituut voor Sociale Geschiedenis te Amsterdam” edited by Mies Campfens and in “Guide to the International Archives and Collections at the IISH, Amsterdam” by Jaap Haag and Atie van der Horst (eds). This 4th edition of the Asian guide has been compiled by Eef Vermeij, with help from Bouwe Hijma of the Archive Section as well as other Institute staff.

13. Bavinck, Ben (1924-2011)Period: 1988-2004*Size: 23 exercise books*Consultation: Not restricted

Ben Bavinck was born in Bandung, Indonesia, in 1924 of well-known Dutch missionary parents. Returning to the Netherlands just before World War 2 started, the war-time episode made a big impression on him. He contributed in a small way to the Resistance Movement, and was jailed by the Nazi government for a period of several months. After the war, he studied law and became active in the international Christian student movement. Meeting up with the Sri Lankan theologian D.T. Niles, the latter invited him in 1953 to join the former missionary school Jaffna College as student chaplain. Having been married that year to a Dutch industrialist's daughter, Mieneke Ubbink, and with a newly born son, the family moved to Vaddukoddai, Ceylon, in 1954. He and his wife later had three more children. Ben Bavinck was attached to Jaffna College until 1972, and proved to be a jack of all trades. He taught math, English, carpentry, photography, acted as director of the lower school, and played an important role in the local church and scout movement. He rapidly came to speak fluent Tamil. Returning to the Netherlands in 1972, he became vice-director of the diocesan bureau of the Dutch Reformed Church, and responsible for its international activities. Travelling widely across the globe, he became heavily involved especially in the anti-Apartheid movement. Ben Bavinck retired from his position in 1987. After a short gap, he was then requested by the World Council of Churches and the National Council of Churches (Sri Lanka) to return to Sri Lanka and play a mediatory role in the ethnic conflict which had since developed. He moved to Colombo in 1988 and took up residence in the YWCA Guesthouse on Union Place, where he occupied a small room in the back. From 1989 to 2004 he worked for the National Council of Churches, travelling mainly to the war-stricken North, frequently with truck-loads of emergency relief goods. Having attained the age of 75 years, he then decided to move back to Jaffna, first working for the Methodist Church as the director of a small old people's home in Puttur. The bishop of the Church of South India subsequently requested him to take up the position of interim director of the seminary in Maruthanamadam, where he stayed until his second retirement. All in all, he thus spent 15 years in the war zone and a total of 30 years in Sri Lanka. Ben Bavinck moved back to The Netherlands in 2004 and settled in Amsterdam, where he became an active member of the local church, and worked on his wartime diaries. The first volume entitled 'Of Tamils and Tigers – a Journey through Sri Lanka's War Years' was published by Vijatha Yapa in 2011. The second volume will be published in 2013. Ben Bavinck passed away peacefully in 2011, and is buried in the Nieuwe Ooster graveyard in Amsterdam.

The diaries of Ben Bavinck come in twentythree notebooks (in Dutch) covering the period 1989–2004. They will become accessible in January 2013.

182. All Burma Students' Democratic Front (ABSDF) *

Period: 2000-2003

Size: 1.5 m.

The All Burma Students' Democratic Front (ABSDF), formed in 1988 to undertake armed and political resistance, following the then military regime's violent crack down of Burma's 1988 democracy uprising, at a meeting in September 2000, decided on a major restructure whereby the ABSDF would continue as an organization of armed resistance committed to the achievement of democracy in Burma. This was done in mutual recognition that armed resistance would remain the primary object of the ABSDF and those members desiring to work only through political and developmental means to achieve democracy in Burma, would leave the organization and establish a Network organization to undertake their goal. As a result the Network for Democracy and Development (NDD) was established in late March 2001, while the ABSDF continued - under the same name - their armed resistance against the military regime.

198. Burma Issues/Peace Way Foundation

Period: 1984-2001

Size: 7.5 m.

Finding aid: list

Originally founded in 1990 Burma Issues is devoted to a peaceful resolution to Burma's struggle. They are a non-partisan organisation and focus on the marginalised groups in the conflict. Their approach is based on concepts of community organising and empowerment of these marginalised communities. Burma Issues is committed to non-violence forms of conflict resolution.

In a project with Burma Issues and a local Thai company we put the biggest part of their documentation collection on microfilm and the originals were subsequently brought to Amsterdam. The collection consists of a wide collection of brochures, reports, magazines, articles and newspaper clippings covering roughly the decade from 1990-2000, and is accessible through keywords.

199. Burma Peace Foundation (Geneva)Period: 1987-2007*Total Size: 18.85 m.*Consultation: Restricted

The Burma Peace Foundation (BPF) was formed in London in 1987 by David Arnott and U Rewata Dhamma, a Burmese Buddhist monk, initially to act as a mediating body between the generals in Rangoon and the non-Burman ethnic groups. Its first concrete activity, however, was to bring money, malaria medicine and moral support to the students and monks who had fled to the Thailand-Burma border in the wake of the suppression of 1988. From 1991 to 1996, it was based in New York where it acted as a conduit for human rights and other information on Burma from the monitors in the field to the UN and other actors and from 1996 to 2007 it carried out similar activities in Geneva. In 2001 BPF launched the Online Burma/Myanmar Library (OBL) (<http://www.burmalibrary.org>) which is now the Internet's largest single depository of online material on Burma/Myanmar, with over 15,000 full-text documents, including a number of unique archives. From 2005, BPF established an office in Mae Sot, Thailand, in parallel with the Geneva office, and in 2007 gave up the Geneva base in order to concentrate on activities in the region.

In the course of these 20 years, BPF/OBL has accumulated a paper and electronic archive dealing with a wide range of issues relating to Burma. A large proportion of the documents relate to multilateral, bilateral and transnational involvement with the country and include not only official documents (which may also be found elsewhere) but also working papers, different stages of draft resolutions etc. Access to the collection is restricted.

208. Commissions of Inquiry into Disappearances of Persons in Sri Lanka

Period: 1994-2007

Total size: 7.26 m.

Consultation: Restricted

The Asian Human Rights Commission (AHRC) has in its possession photocopies of almost all the documents pertaining the inquiries and investigations carried out by two of the Presidential Commissions of Inquiry into Disappearances of Persons in Sri Lanka appointed in 1994 and 1998 by the then President Chandrika Bandaranaike and a few other related documents; one of these commissions is referred to as the Central Zone Commission (CZC) and the other as the All Island Commission (AIC); though the government of Sri Lanka published what was believed to be the reports of this commissions, they were in fact parts of the reports of these commissions which contain their observations and recommendations; for whatever reason, all parts of these reports had not been published in full; all the originals of the material pertaining to the inquiries and investigations done by these commissions have been deposited at the Government Archives as required by the law and they are not accesible to anyone for a period of thirty years from the date of deposit to the government archives; in the circumstances the material with the AHRC, and now with the IISH, are documents which contain information that the government of Sri Lanka would like to be kept 'confidential' as amongst the perpetrators against whom the commissions had found 'credible material indicative of their responsibility', are many politicians, senior military and police officers and others; it could also be because these documents have information on mass graves and torture chambers that existed during that period.

Case files (mostly in the Sinhala language and some in English), reports (in English and Sinhala), information on perpetrators of disappearances (in Sinhala and English), and related documents (in English). Each case of the CZC file contains all or most of the following: a copy of the complaint that had been received; copies of any documentary evidence tendered, if relating to the disappearance concerned; and a copy of the evidence given under oath at the inquiry by the complainants and their witnesses, if any.

220. Democratic Party for a New Society (DPNS) *

Period: 1988-

Size: c. 5 m.

After the protests of August 1988 in Burma the All Burma Federation of Students' Union (ABFSU) leadership decided that part of the student activists should establish a legal political party and participate in the non-violent form of struggle. Thus the student and youth activists organized and formed the Democratic Party for a New Society on October 14, 1988. During the organizational campaign of the DPNS, the DPNS focused on the youths of grassroot population such as peasants, workers, and urban poor population. After six months, the DPNS emerged as the second most powerful political party. The DPNS formed a reliable alliance of the National League for Democracy (NLD) led by Daw Aung San Suu Kyi. In spite of such achievements, the DPNS was the target of the State Law and Order Restoration Council's (SLORC) oppression. After the party was formed, the chairman had to flee to the eastern border. Meanwhile more than one hundred party members were apprehended by the SLORC. No less than three hundred members of the DPNS were imprisoned within six months and two of them died in jail. The Central Committee of DPNS, therefore, decided to resort to underground activities, and the chairman and eleven leaders left Rangoon in November 1991. The headquarters of the DPNS were then established at Manerplaw. After arriving at the liberated area, the DPNS became a member of the Democratic Alliance of Burma (DAB) and, later, a member of the National Council of Union of Burma (NCUB). The DPNS was able to establish contacts with the party members who remained inside Burma, and formed underground party committees inside Burma.

262. Iranian political and social movementsPeriod: c. 1950-1997*Size: 31 reels*Finding aid: list

Popular movements – both political and religious in character – played a decisive role in Iranian politics during the second half of the 20th century; in 1952 prime minister Mussadeq got mass support in his conflict with shah Mohammad Reza Pahlavi; in 1953 however his government was overthrown by the military; opposition against the shah continued in the 1960s and 1970s and in 1978 a revolution started, which brought down the regime of the shah in 1979 and led to the establishment of the Islamic Republic in Iran under Ayatollah Khomeiny in the same year; despite oppression however opposition movements continued to exist and got support from exiled Iranians from abroad.

Collection of pamphlets, leaflets, copies of periodicals and other publications of political and social movements in Iran and of organizations of exiled Iranians, including the Peykar (Struggle), the Cherikha-ye Fedai-ye Khalq-e Iran (Organization of the Iranian People's Fedaii Guerillas), the Sazeman-e Mojahedin-e Khalq-e Iran (Organization of the Iranian People's Mojahedins) and other organizations; copies of among others Iran va Jahan (Iran and the World) 1980-1983, Rah-e azadi (The Way of Freedom) 1985-1989, Khandaq 1983-1986, Ara 1981-1988, Nehzat, Chap-e Faranse (The Movement, printed in France) 1981-1985, Name-ye Nejat-e Iran (The Paper of Iran's Liberation) 1982-1986, Qiyam-e Iran (Rising Iran) 1980-1996, Iran-e Azad (Free Iran) 1964-1987 and other periodicals, most of them published in France, Germany, Great Britain and in the USA.

264. Iranian Socialist and Communist Parties, Organizations and Groups Period: (1931-) 1957-1990*Size: 2.12 m.*Finding aid: list

The first generation of Iranian socialists participated in the Constitutional Revolution of 1906-1908; in 1917 the 'Adalat (Justice) Party was founded in Baku, Azerbaijan, which in 1920 changed its name into Ferqeh-e Komonist-e Iran (Communist Party of Iran); suppressed by the Reza Shah autocracy during 1921-1941; in 1941 the Hezb-e Tudeh-e Iran (Tudeh or Mass Party of Iran) was founded, which showed a rapid expansion and became a major force in the post-World War II period; the Tudeh Party of Iran (TPI) lost its strength drastically after 1953 because of the repression by the regime of Mohammad Reza Shah but managed to survive and played a role in the revolution of 1979.

Besides the TPI the Sazman-e Cherkha-ye Feda'i-ye Khalq-e Iran (Guerrilla's Fedai Organization of Iran) came into existence through the merging in 1971 of two guerrilla groups which were active since the mid-1960s; after the revolution of 1979 the Fedai split because of a conflict over their position towards the Islamic Republic; persecutions by the Khomeini regime started in 1981; a large number of the leaders and cadres of the TPI, the Fedai and other left organizations were arrested, executed or sentenced to prison; an internal opposition within the TPI emerged after 1983 and founded the Hezb-e Demokratik-e Mardom-e Iran (Iranian People's Democratic Party). Ahmadi, Hamid: born in Sari, Iran 1945; graduated from Iran's naval academy in 1971; member of the Central Committee of the Tudeh Party; left the TPI in 1986 and is research fellow at the Free University of Berlin.

Collection of documents from Hamid Ahmadi consisting of correspondence by Ahmadi, Ardeshir Avanesiyan and other central committee members or cadre members of the TPI 1951, 1984-1990; documents relating to plenums of the TPI 1957, 1981, 1984, 1988; proclamations, internal bulletins, pamphlets and other documents relating to the TPI 1960-1961, 1973-1990 and n.d.; some documents relating to the Iranian People's Democratic Party 1987-1991; internal bulletins, pamphlets and other documents relating to the Organization of the Iranian People's Fedai Guerrillas, the Feda'i Aksariyat (Fedai Majority) organization and other Iranian armed struggle and marxist organizations 1968-1990.

269. Karen Human Rights Group (KHRG) *

Period: ca. 1992-2003

Size:

The Karen Human Rights Group (KHRG) is an independent grassroots human rights organisation which was established in Karen-held territory in Burma in 1992 and operates in rural Burma as well as within refugee camps in Thailand. With fifteen years of experience, KHRG is now recognized internationally as a leading authority on major issues such as internal displacement and forced labour in Burma. We work directly with rural villagers who are suffering abuses such as forced labour, systematic destruction of villages and crops, forced relocation, extortion, looting, arbitrary detention, torture, sexual assault and summary executions. The vast majority of these abuses are committed by soldiers and officials of the State Peace & Development Council (SPDC), Burma's ruling military junta. KHRG members work in areas where it is possible to avoid SPDC forces, gathering photos and other evidence and interviewing villagers, the internally displaced, and refugees. Our aim is to help villagers in rural Burma to get their story to the outside world by translating their stories and testimonies for worldwide distribution, accompanied by supporting photos and documentary evidence of the human rights situation in rural areas. In the field, we work directly with villagers to help them overcome outside perceptions of them as 'helpless victims' by focusing on their strengths and the strategies they already use successfully to resist human rights abuses and retain control over their own lives, land and livelihoods. Through this work we hope to catalyse discussions and other processes among villagers themselves that can enhance these strategies and strengthen their position relative to armed and powerful groups.

The KHRG archive at IISH includes a complete set of the more than 300 text and photographic reports we have released since 1992, in hard copy and on compact disc. It also includes many of the raw materials these reports are drawn from: thousands of cassette tapes of interviews with villagers, townspeople, escaped military porters, and soldiers (in S'Gkaw Karen, Burmese, and Pwo Karen), English translation transcripts of many of these tapes (in hard copy or in electronic form), original order documents sent to villages by the Burmese military and other authorities, situation reports written in S'Gkaw Karen by our field researchers, original photos, and handwritten research notes. Most of these materials date from 1992 to 2003 because KHRG still holds the most recent materials for its ongoing use, but newer materials will be added to the archive once they are a few years old.

2010: Accrual to the Collection.

322. Rejimen Ke-10, Tentera Rakyat Malaya / 10th Regiment of the 'Malayan People's Army' *

Period: 1976-1987

Size: 2 m.

Established on May 21st, 1949, in Kerdau, near Temerloh (Pahang) the 10th Regiment was the only Malay-majority regiment of the Malayan National Liberation Army (MNLA), the armed wing of the Communist Party of Malaysia (CPM). The other regiments were mainly Chinese. In the years 1953-1954 the Regiment retreated to the Malaysian-Thai border area to finally settle on the Thai side of the border.

From 1948 on the CPM was involved in a guerrilla war against the British colonialists, who had reoccupied the country after the Second World War. In 1959 it was decided to abandon the armed struggle, a decision which was again reversed in 1961 ('New Policy Period'). From 1968 onwards the Party leadership sent several 'People's Liberation Ambush Teams' to the South (into Malaysia), but they failed to stage an armed revolution. From 1969 on, daily radio broadcasts of Suara Revolusi Malaya (The Voice of the Malayan Revolution), operating from Hunan in southern China, reported news and domestic and international analyses of events by the Party. (from the early 80s these were broadcasted from Southern Thailand.) In 1982 the 'Malayan People's Liberation Army' was renamed 'Malayan People's Army'.

Plagued by internal problems and rectification campaigns in the early seventies, the second half of the seventies saw the level of armed combat drop considerably. Finally, on December 2, 1989, a peace accord was signed in Hat Yai (Thailand) between the CPM and the governments of Malaysia and Thailand.

Brochures, periodicals, educational materials and other documents (mainly copies) on the activities and history of the 10th regiment of the Malayan People's Army 1976-1987.

324. 'Say Hi to the Leaders' Collection (Thailand)*

Period: 2010

Size: 1098 messages

Consultation: Restricted

During the Red Shirt street protests at the Ratchaprasong intersection (Bangkok, Thailand) in April–May 2010, a sort of message-board was created where people could leave notes with messages to the Red Shirt leaders; on top of the message board a sign was posted 'Say Hi to the Leaders' (in English); the construction consisted of a wooden frame with plastic boards nailed onto it and a small wooden shelf beneath it to write on; pens and post-it notes were provided; the notes were attached to the plastic board with pins; it was situated (but maybe not all the time) against the tourist booth on the corner of Thanon Ratchadamri and Thanon Phloen Chit near the Gaysorn mall; all together there are 1098 messages in this collection; the total collection was bigger but some messages were lost during transport; also we don't know the date when the board went up and if it has been emptied in between to show the messages to the leaders; the exact number of messages will never be known, but this collection gives an indication of the sentiments amongst the protesters; the great majority of the messages is in Thai, some are directly written in English either by Thai people or foreign visitors, and some are in other languages; the collection was donated to the Institute by a visitor of Bangkok at the time who was able to secure this collection on May 20, 2010, the day following the violent dispersal of the Red Shirt protesters by the Thai Army.

A collection of 1098 notes (most of them post-it notes, some other formats, some only drawings)

Period: 1971-1986

Total size: 0.05 m.

Consultation: Not restricted

The Sazman-i Mojahedin-i Khalq Iran (Peoples Mojahedin Organization of Iran) was clandestinely founded by three students who were members of the Nehzat-e Azadi Iran (Freedom Movement of Iran) in 1966; the new organization adopted the ideology of Islam and armed struggle as its theoretical and practical guide; in 1971 the Sazman-i Mojahedin-i Khalq Iran came under attack by the Iranian government and its leaders were detained and executed but underground activities continued; gradually the orientation shifted to Marxism and the experiences of the revolutions in Algeria, China, Cuba and Vietnam were studied; following the Islamic Revolution of 1979 in Iran the Sazman-i Mojahedin-i Khalq Iran developed rapidly but quickly the new regime appeared to be the new enemy; leaders and activists were detained and executed, other ones escaped to Iraq; in 1997 the United States recognized the Sazman-i Mojahedin-i Khalq Iran as a terrorist organization and in 2002 the European Union did the same.

88 Declarations of the Sazman-i Mojahedin-i Khalq Iran (Peoples Mojahedin Organization of Iran).

3. Documentation Collections

The Documentation Collection of IISH

The documentation collection of IISH contains documents which have no relationship to an archive. These can be folders, flyers, pamphlets, statements, press-releases and other printed materials. Occasionally these can be minutes of meetings or discussion papers from an organisation.

As a general rule the documents are sorted by country. The criteria used is that the document should be produced in the country concerned. Documents on one country produced in another country will be filed under the latter. Accordingly, documents produced by an organisation in exile will be filed under the country where they were based in exile. (except for Burma/ Myanmar) Due to the extensive search facilities it is always possible to retrace documents from an organisation which has been active in different countries.

Inside each country-folder documents are filed according to a system of categories and subcategories. Inside these categories as much as possible documents will be filed according to provenance. Anonymous documents will be filed – per country or category – in a subcategory ‘general’. Whenever possible names and dates will be mentioned. The listings made for each country contain the years of both the oldest and most recent document.

In Search of Silenced Voices

The objective of the project In Search of Silenced Voices was to collect individual life histories by interviewing of those Indonesian political emigrés, who are still living in Western Europe, China and Vietnam. These life histories cover their activities as members of the Indonesian leftist intelligentsia before 1965 as well as the diaspora they experienced after 1965.

The collection consists of more than 200 audiotapes with interviews.

For more detailed information on the collection, see:

On July 8, 1999, following closure of a reformist-oriented newspaper, students in Tehran launched a campaign for political freedom that included freedom of speech. Some 200 students staged a peaceful protest in front of their dormitories in Tehran. Jamshid, an Iranian photographer, photographed this event.

Jamshid's collection contains 120 photographs that record the day-to-day events in the hot summer of 1999 in Tehran.

Küsters, Tom

Tom Küsters was born in Groesbeek in 1943. Although he died in this same town in 2008, he was deeply involved in the world outside the Netherlands throughout his active life. In the 1970s he participated in the Vietnam movement in Nijmegen and produced a series of posters on the subject. The Vietnam War intrigued him. He built a model landscape of Dien Bien Phoe, where French colonialism in Indochina collapsed. Armed with ordnance survey maps that now pertain to the archive corresponding with the model, he examined the situation on site. Küsters was also interested in the rise and murder of Lumumba. The work of art, featuring 120 portraits of people involved in this case, is part of the collection. Non-political work of Tom Küsters, who was also a skilled marathon runner, is now at the Valkhof Museum in Nijmegen. The IISH collection consists of the scale model and related documentation, screen prints and printed materials. See also: posters by Tom Küsters.

Pirnazar Diaspora Radio Archive

Collecting documents on the political and cultural activities of the Iranian diaspora has been one of the IISH enduring tasks. Following the Revolution of 1978-1982, some 2-4 millions Iranians left for Western Europe and North America creating a dynamic diaspora. In California, the Iranian diaspora gradually developed as one of the major ethnic groups. The Pirnazar Radio Archive includes a collection of audio materials extracted from Radio Iran based in Los Angeles during the period 1980-2005. It includes interviews with the political and cultural elite of the Iranian activists covering a variety of issues from memoirs to analysis of the political and cultural campaigns.

Collection of black-and-white photographs and negative prints from Ewald Vanvugt (Den Bosch, The Netherlands 1943), socially concerned writer and photographer. From 1963 Vanvugt published a series of novels, short stories and poems. Later on he also wrote books and articles on work ethic, slavery, opium traffic and colonial history. During the sixties, seventies and eighties he travelled among others through India, the United States of America, South-America, Indonesia and Persia. In 1983 during six months he lived on the Indonesian island Bali. At the end of the eighties he travelled through the Soviet Union. In 2003 he toured South-Africa and Namibia. About his adventures during his trips he wrote countless travel stories. During his travels Vanvugt extensively took photographs of social issues: this he called 'the wonder everyday world of beggars, pot smokers, drinkers, child labour, lepers, women's labour, transvestites and a lot more. Some photos were published in different Dutch magazines and papers, like Vrij Nederland, VPRO-gids and de Volkskrant.

Posters

The IISH has a collection of c. 125.000 social and political posters. All posters are accessible through the catalogue. Search for 'poster' plus country, artist, organisation, person, or subject. When digitized copies of posters are not available through the catalogue, originals can be consulted in the reading room, by previous arrangement only.
